EPA Team,

Looking at Mr. Whitney's questions, here is a first stab at a draft response. I am in the office only for a few hours today. Let me know if I can help further.

- A community involvement plan (CIP) summarizes public concerns and communication preferences about the site, what activities EPA will use to communicate and address community concerns, and outlines how people can engage throughout the Superfund process.
- EPA staff conducted community interviews June 14 – 17, 2016 as part of a broader effort to develop the CIP.
- The people who were interviewed represented a broad range of stakeholder groups: former facility workers, adjacent landowners, elected officials, city and county public officials, news media, downstream landowners adjacent to Flathead River, local schools, local businesses, etc.
- EPA is looking for feedback on the community concerns and community preferences to see if there are concerns about the site that are not captured in the CIP and other methods that may be appropriate to reach key audiences and stakeholders with information about the site.
- The initial data from the RI are in and a draft summary report is being prepared. We expect those to be available to the public in the next week or two and EPA will work to get those posted on, or linked from, the EPA webpage for the site and make a hard copy available at the local information repository.

Hi Libby,

I'd like to do a short taped phone interview tomorrow morning if possible, I'm available starting at 10am Mountain Time.

I'd like a quick summary of what the draft CIP is, what kind of feedback the agency is asking for on it, and then an update on when we can expect the sampling results mentioned in the CIP email and how those results will inform the ongoing NPL/Superfund process.

Best number for me is 406-243-4075.

Thanks,
Eric

Hello Mr. Whitney,

I received your voicemail and an email from Robert letting me know you would be reaching out. Could you give me an idea of what your anticipated schedule is for wanting to hold the radio interview? Also any insight into the particular questions you have about the CFAC site and the recently released Community Involvement Plan would be helpful. I am unfortunately leaving the office in a few minutes but wanted to reach out and have looped in our Region's media officer's.

Sincerely, Libby
